GAMBLERS' CODE BALKS POLICE

Unwritten Law of Sporting Men Proves a Bar to the Solution of the Shooting in the Ross more Hotel.

WOUNDED MAN WON'T TALK

Declares That If He Dies It Will Be All Right, and that if He Recovers He Will Avenge Him-

The their efforts to solve the mystery rrounding the shooting of Edward arpenter by Thomas Lenahan at the essmore Hotel the police have run up against a stone wall in the shape of that unwritten law of the sporting

Eraternity, "say nothing."

In the lower circle of society to which both Carpenter and Lenahan belong all guarrels are personal and private. "No putside interference" is the rule. Justice is translated into vengoance.

The man who suffers injury in the ander world and who calls in the police instead of biding his time and paying off the score himself is ostracised. It is this unwriten law that is baffling the offorts of the police to learn the cause of the shooting.

As a rule the patrons of the Rossmore belong to the sporting fraternity. Book-makers, gamblers and their associates have made the place their rendezvous and it is against their code to mix in with another man's quarrel. That is why the police meet with the stereo-typed "I don't know a thing about it" when they ask for information regarding the shooting. And this despite the fact that at least one hundred men were In the hotel at the time the shooting oc-

Lenahan, who is also known as "Doc" Naylor, refuses to say anything. Carpenter, who lies at the New York Hospital in a critical condition, refuses even to identify Lenahan as the man who shot him.

"If I die it will be all right, and if I a sleep of 100 days duration, relapse don't, the man who shot me will get into unconsciousness about 8 o'clock last As," says Carpenter.

Both men are known to the police, has entered on another long slumber.

Both men are known to the police, and the photographs of both are to be found in the Rogues' Gallery. Lenahan is an ex-convict, having served a term at Sing Sing for swindling a man on the Bowery. He belongs to a generation that is little known at present. He formerly operated take museums on the Bowery, and for several years past has resided in Philadelphia.

Carpenter, who is also known as John Russell, John Thompson and Thomas Baker, has also resided in Philadelphia for some years. He is said to be fond of ocean travel, and is particularly adept at card games on the high seas. According to the story told by Thomas Clery, a liquor dealer, of Lynn, Mass., who was arrested with Lenahan for attempting to assist the latter to escape after the shooting, the men had some words at the bar of the Rossmore, but separated, and Carpenter went into the case at the rear of the barroom and ondered a lobster. Lenahan followed him out there and began to insult him. Carpenter spoke to him in a mild tone and then Lenahan drew his revolver and fired.

Lenahan and Clery are held at Police Headquarters to await the result of Carpenter's injuries. The physicians at the New York Hospital say he has little chance for recovery.

DEAD HANDS HELD WEEDS.

Despondent Man Drowned Himself in Sight of Neighbors.

WINSTED, Conn., Oct. 20.-Despond ent because of the foreclosure of a mortgage on his home, Charles W. Green, forty years old, formerly Post-master at Millerton, N. Y., drowned Admself in the mil pond in Irondale yes-terday, the second anniversary of the death of his ten-year-old son, Floyd.

death of his ten-year-old son, Floyd. After his two children left home in the morning with their school books Green ran out of his home and started for the pond, not far distant.

Mrs. Green notified the neighbors of ber husband's queer actions, and soon a dozen or more of them were on his trail. Arriving at the pond they saw thim wading in about four feet of water. When one of the party started out on an improvised raft Green faced his rescuers, put his fingers to his nose, and then dived under the water. He did not come to the surface again, and when found at the bottom of the pond his fingers still clutched the weeds.

RUSSIANS BACK IN MUKDEN.

Action Explained on Ground that Chinese Are Weak.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 30 .- An of icial despatch from Mukden, Manchu

"A detachment of Russian troops have entered the town and reoccuhave entered the town and reoccumed the guardhouses. This action was m consequence of the weakness displayed by the Chinese authorities, who to not fulfil their promises, and owing to the general ferment prevailing here.
The rumors, emanating from Japanese pources, relative to the erection of Russian forts on the Yalu River. Corea, are declared to be exaggerated. It is

First Appearance as a Star. SCRANTON, Pa., Oct. 30 .- The stellar lebut of Eleanor Robson was witnessed at the Lyceum Theatre last night and at the same time the first produc-tion of Israel Zangwill's comedy, "Mere-ity Mary Ann," Miss Robson's work as the simple-hearted London Slavey was superb.

The dramatist has succeeded in preserving the atmosphere of the delightful story. Miss Robson was admirably supported by Edwin Arden and a competent company. The play ran with remarkable smoothness for a first performance.

JACQUES THIBAUD, VIOLINIST, WILL BE HEARD TO-NIGHT

As Soloist with the Wetzler Orchestra He Opens the Musical Season.

Herman Hans Wetzier will give his first orchestral concert at Carnegie Hall this evening. This well inaugurate the musical season of 1903-1904—a season which is to be plethoric in concerts of all sorts.

The orchestral numbers to be played to-night are Beethoven's Seventh Symphony and Liszt's symphonic poem 'Mazzeppa'—a masterpiece of programme music with daring and dashing raythms and dazzling plays of harmony. The solo artist will be Jacques Thibaud, the all sorts.

The orchestral numbers to be played to-night are Beethoven's Seventh Symphony and Lisst's symphonic poem "Mazeppa"—a masterpiece of programme music with daring and dashing rhythms and dazling plays of harmony. The solo artist will be Jacques Thibaud, the young French violinist, whose career, with the promises of his student days, its deceptions in the first years of his professional activity and its final triumphs, is one of genuine romance.

HISTORIAN STRICKEN.

BERLIN, Oct. 30.—Prof. Mommsen, the historian, who was born in 1817, has suffered a severe apolectic stroke. He is unconscious, his left side is paralyzed and there is little hope for his recovery.

Amarchists here are endeavoring to forment a general strike, in sympathy with the strike at Bilbao. The Captain-General has hurriedly left Barcelona for Madrid. Already large numbers of people are out of work in consequence of and there is little hope for his recovery.
